

BioMérieux Vidas Kube gets CE mark

January 2023—BioMérieux announced the CE marking of its Vidas Kube, a next-generation automated immunoassay system for the company's Vidas range. The system features a stackable and modular benchtop design and is compatible with the existing routine test menu covering emergency and critical care, immunochemistry, and infectious diseases. The commercial launch is planned in selected countries at the beginning of the year, extending gradually to the rest of the world during the second quarter.
