

Clinical expert intelligence system, 9/15

Pacific Knowledge Systems has relaunched in the United States with a suite of solutions based on its patented RippleDown technology, a clinical expert intelligence system that replicates a domain expert's human decision-making process at scale and with absolute accuracy, according to a company statement.

As part of its renewed focus on the U.S. market, PKS plans to extend its operations with the establishment of a U.S. office and domestic CEO and aims to work with health organizations across the country to improve health care quality, reduce medical errors, improve productivity, and deliver cost savings.

Targeted at laboratories and electronic health records, PKS' solutions are able to automate patient-centric interpretative reporting, appropriate testing, reflex testing, treatment recommendations, and real-time alerts.
