

FDA-cleared blood glucose monitoring system, 4/16

LabStyle Innovations is preparing to launch its FDA-cleared Dario Blood Glucose Monitoring System in the United States. Direct-to-consumer sales through LabStyle's U.S. website, as well as through leading online retailers such as Amazon, are slated to begin in the first quarter of 2016, with sales through various nonexclusive third-party distributors and medical equipment suppliers expected to commence in the first and second quarters of this year.

An East Coast-based North American headquarters and a West Coast logistics and warehouse center are being established and are expected to open during the first quarter to serve U.S. and Canadian markets. LabStyle is currently working with insurers to establish reimbursement.
