

Johns Hopkins joins PathCentral network, 8/13/88

PathCentral announced that Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine's Department of Pathology will participate as a client in the PathCentral Pathology Network (www.pathcentralpro.net), a comprehensive online information exchange and digital consultation forum.

The network enables physicians to upload case files using digital images for pathologists to review and render critical consulting diagnoses on a global and domestic real-time basis. The network seeks to connect pathologists, incorporating social media tools, making it an ideal forum for pathologists to send and perform consults, create connections, post information, share cases, ask questions, and expand professional relationships.
