

Lab certification management, 10/15

LabRight Certification, from Vacava, is a tool for lab professionals that automates lab certification and accreditation management and aims to increase efficiency and lower operating costs by eliminating paperwork.

With LabRight, the user can store and update lab profiles and conduct internal audits that create simple, informative reports. LabRight alerts the user to renewal dates and populates renewal forms automatically using previously entered data.

LabRight also helps large organizations with wide laboratory networks keep data consistent within the organization. Rather than require each location to manually enter data into its own series of paper files or spreadsheets, LabRight allows lab information to be accessed, submitted, approved, and audited from anywhere in the network, giving all users access to the same level of up-to-date information.

The certifications and accreditations that LabRight is designed to assist with include Clinical Laboratory Improvement Amendments, the College of American Pathologists, American Association of Blood Banks, American Osteopathic Association, American Society for Histocompatibility and Immunogenetics, Commission on Office Laboratory, and the Joint Commission.
