

PlatinumCode to support breast cancer research, 11/14

November 2014—PlatinumCode will donate five percent of its profits from the sale of pink products to breast cancer research. The company has launched various marketing efforts to help support breast cancer research, including providing clinical and hospital laboratories with its Pink Packs of samples.

The free Pink Packs contain magenta tourniquets and pink pediatric tourniquets, cohesive bandages, nitrile gloves, and disposable lab coats or jackets.

PlatinumCode will choose a charitable organization with a strong focus on research that allocates more than 90 percent of its budget to program expenses.
