

Project Santa Fe collaborates with LTS Health

October 2018—The Project Santa Fe Foundation and LTS Health announced a collaboration to build awareness of the Clinical Lab 2.0 initiative both through the development of an online crowdsourcing platform to facilitate an international conversation and through LTS Health's organizational footprint in the U.S., U.K., Middle East, and Africa. LTS Health is also creating an online worldwide community platform, which will launch in conjunction with the second annual Clinical Lab 2.0 Workshop in Chicago (Nov. 4-6). "The platform will serve as an evolving knowledge base for the movement to crowdsource ideas from leading professionals and institutions in lab diagnostics, put them into practice, and document the evidence," according to the press release.
