

Quest selects Siemens Atellica for IA testing

Feb. 25, 2020—Siemens Healthineers announced it was selected by Quest Diagnostics to be Quest's preferred supplier for immunoassay testing. As part of the multiyear agreement, Quest will deploy up to 120 Atellica Solution immunoassay analyzers in 19 esoteric and core laboratories in the United States.

"Our strategic relationship with Siemens Healthineers led to the development of a flexible solution that will improve our existing workflow and help us achieve greater cost savings," Jim Davis, executive vice president, general diagnostics, at Quest, said in a press release. "We look forward to implementing this solution throughout our laboratory network."

A highly automated Quest lab in Clifton, NJ, will feature Atellica Solution immunoassay analyzers connected to an Inpeco FlexLab automation system for a high-throughput, multidisciplinary testing solution designed to substantially increase productivity, reduce turnaround time, decrease unwanted variations, and lower operational costs. The new flagship lab is expected to be completed in 2021.
