

Radox acquires Cellix

June 23, 2023—Radox (Crumlin, U.K.) has acquired Cellix, a Dublin-based company that develops microfluidic tools and impedance flow cytometers for cell analysis.

“The acquisition of Cellix complements and broadens Radox’s offerings by making flow cytometry more accessible to a wider audience of scientists and clinicians,” Peter FitzGerald, managing director of Radox Laboratories, said in a press statement. “We are looking forward to bringing together Cellix’s expertise in cytometry with our dedication to diagnostics and believe this combination will enable us to streamline workflows, resulting in better outcomes for patients.”