

Verichem offers free data reduction reports

July 2023—Verichem Laboratories now offers its customers free access to its Web-based and online calibration verification data reduction and test-reporting programs. Designed for use with the company's clinical reference materials, these programs and services provide the necessary statistical data and test reports to satisfy CLIA requirements for the calibration verification of clinical assays. Users can register online with a password, log in, and then enter and submit data; there is no software to download. Reports are generated instantly in a PDF format and are ready to review, sign off, and file. Final reports can include clinical system test accuracy, linearity, precision, precision with peer comparison, and other supplemental study data. Technical support is available via phone to answer questions or troubleshoot.
